The April 2020 session is online due to Covid-19.

The Internal Family Systems Model

Internal Family SystemsSM is at the forefront of a movement toward a more collaborative therapeutic approach that relies on clients’ intuitive wisdom. IFSSM offers a clear, non-pathologizing, and empowering view of human cognitive and emotional life and provides a dynamic therapeutic approach that allows both therapist and client to enter into a transformational relationship in which healing can occur.

Richard C. Schwartz, PhD, has been developing the IFS model for more than 30 years, with IFS now practiced by thousands of licensed therapists and other professionals throughout the United States and internationally. Mental health care professionals and others trained in the IFS model can easily integrate it into a wide variety of practices using the unique methods IFS offers to create safe environments for clients to become Self-transforming. Internal Family Systems therapy is a simple yet sophisticated integration of psychology, spirituality, and intra-psychic and family systems theory.

- Works well with couples, families, groups, and children;
- Can effectively treat trauma;
- Is a client-led approach that respects each client’s pace and goals;
- Establishes a productive, trusting, and collaborative partnership between therapist and client;
- Helps therapists remain centered and open-hearted.

Internal Family Systems: An Evidence-Based Practice

Internal Family Systems (IFS) is now posted on NREPP as an evidence-based practice. NREPP is the National Registry for Evidence-Based Programs and Practices, a national repository that is maintained by the U.S. government’s Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA). Interventions listed in NREPP have been subject to independent, rigorous scrutiny, and are deemed to show significant impact on individual outcomes relating to mental health.

As a clinical treatment, IFS has been rated effective for improving general functioning and well-being. In addition, it has been rated promising for improving each of: phobia, panic, and generalized anxiety disorders and symptoms; physical health conditions and symptoms; personal resilience/self-concept; and depression and depressive symptoms.

These scientific findings and the listing of IFS on NREPP affirm the vast potential of IFS therapy for advancing emotional healing and mental well-being. In particular, they indicate promising effects on mind (depression, anxiety), body (physical health conditions), and spirit (personal resilience and self-concept).

- Apply basic IFS techniques to various clinical populations; and
- Take advantage of the opportunities IFS offers for personal development.

Format: The training includes lecture, discussion, demonstration, experiential exercise, video review, and small group practice. Teleconferences occur between the on-site sessions and enable participants to have contact with their trainers, and each other, in order to ask questions and further integrate material already presented.

Program Hours: This Level 1 training will meet for two on-site sessions, and two teleconference sessions, totaling 84 program hours. Each on-site session comprises 40 program hours, and each teleconference session comprises two program hours. Session and daily schedules are listed later in this brochure.

Overnighter and Day Commuter Packages and Fees (for On-site Training Sessions)

Participants are responsible for their own lodging and meal costs. Your Overnighter or Day Commuter reservations at the training sites need to be made by IFS Institute's Site Services Coordinator, and we will use information you provide on a reservation form you will receive via email from IFS Institute's Site Services Coordinator after you are accepted into the program. While it is not required, we encourage you to lodge at the training sites for your convenience, and so you can get to know your fellow participants and enhance your overall training experience.

Lodging and meals during the training are reserved for training members. Some participants may wish to bring a spouse or partner, but we don't recommend this. First, the schedule is an intensive undertaking. You will have some free time during each session, but it will be limited, and you may prefer to spend it on your own or socializing with others in the training. Also, IFS Institute could only prudently make financial commitments to the sites for lodging and meals for people in the training. If you wish to stay with someone who is not a member of the training, you are welcome to explore other lodging options, and then the Day Commuter fee would apply.

If you are considering arriving early or staying late at a training site, please contact the site directly to find out if they can accommodate you and what your costs would be. IFS Institute cannot make or be responsible for reservations or other arrangements outside of the training dates. Site contact information is at the end of this brochure.
