Lead Trainer

Robin Warsh, MSW (she/her) is an IFIO Senior Lead Trainer and Certified Internal Family Systems (IFS) Therapist who has maintained a clinical practice in Boston, MA for over 30 years. She specializes in helping couples heal from early complex trauma so they can more safely connect with themselves and each other. She provides IFIO training and consultation domestically and internationally. She is a newly retired Professor from the Boston College School of Social Work, where she taught for more than three decades. During her tenure, Robin developed the first-ever IFS elective offered at a graduate school. Since 2013, Robin has dedicated her career to supporting relational healing and helping individuals and couples move from protection to connection. To her three beautiful grandchildren, she is simply known as "Mimi."

Susan Mason, LCSW (she/her/hers) is an IFIO Assistant Trainer, Certified IFS Therapist, and Approved IFS Institute Clinical Consultant. She began studying the Internal Family Systems (IFS) model in the late 1990s, learning directly from Dr. Richard Schwartz through his monthly consultation group as the model was being developed. With over 30 years in private practice in the Chicago area, she works with both individuals and couples, and has served on staff for IFIO trainings since 2015. She is passionate about supporting the growth of IFS and IFIO therapists through training and consultation. Additionally, Susan collaborates in developing workshops and continuity groups honoring the wisdom and community of the IFS Elder therapist.

IFIO™ Basic Training Description

Our IFIO Basic Training is a 72-hour experiential clinical training for graduates of IFS Level 1. It is designed to deepen and refine your effectiveness as a couples therapist while fulfilling a core requirement toward IFS certification.

Grounded in the Internal Family Systems (IFS) model, this training thoughtfully integrates elements of systems thinking and neuroscience. IFIO emerged from a desire to bring IFS into a relational setting, using intimate relationships as a powerful vehicle for both individual and shared healing and growth. Rather than working with partners in isolation, IFIO invites therapists to engage the relational system itself as the pathway to change. In this training, therapists and practitioners will develop practical, embodied skills to:

- Facilitate effective relational work with couples and intimate partners.
- Navigate common challenges in couples therapy with greater confidence and clarity.
- Skillfully work with extreme protective parts and integrate both interpersonal and intrapsychic processes.
- Support couples in communicating more effectively while deepening heartfelt connection.
